

CHAPTER – 10

‘MEADOW SURPRISES’

HANDOUT

‘LET’S HAVE A QUICK REVIEW OF THE FIRST THREE STANZAS’

KEYPOINTS: -

1. There are innumerable pleasant surprises hidden in a meadow which delight us every time we walk through it.
2. Meadows have always been there as a part of the great natural framework.
3. Walking on the soft velvety grass is indeed blissful.
4. The brook in a meadow is another special feature enchanting us with its musical sound.
5. A butterfly sipping nectar from a buttercup unfolding its drinking straws is yet another beautiful sight.
6. One might also scare a rabbit sitting silent and still, hiding somewhere and suddenly hopping out.
7. Besides these, there are other visual treats like a dandelion whose fuzzy head was golden days ago and now its airy parachutes flutter when you blow.
8. Dandelions are bright yellow flowers, enough to catch our attention.
9. Meadows are essential treasure houses of nature.
10. Whoever walks across, needs nothing but an appreciative eye and an attentive ear.
